Foes' Queries on Peace Plan Are 'Encouraging' to Rogers

By Fred Farms

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (THT) Rogers said today that he was "somewhat encouraged" that Communist negotiators in Paris did not immediately reject President Nixon's eight-point peace plan formally proposed at today's

But he said that North Vietnam was insisting on putting "a Communist government" in South Vietnam. The United States "can't accept" this and will not sgree to abandon or overthrow the Saigon government, as Hanol demands, Mr. Hogers said.

"We are completely flexible," on the method of holding elec-tions in South Vietnam, the secretary said at a foreign-policy conference of editors. The President proposed internationally supervised elections open to Viet Cong participation within six months of an agreement, with President Nguyen Van Thieu's resignation to be submitted 30 days before the balloting.

Talks With Porter

Mr. Rogers addressed the conference shortly after speaking by transatiantic telephone with the chief U.S. delegate at the Paris peace talks, Ambassador William Porter, who presented the Nixon plan earlier today.

The secretary said he took encouragement that the repre-sentatives of Hanoi and the Viet Cong for the first time "have been asking some questions about how the fairness of the election can be assured." He called this "a good sign," noting that though "there has been a good deal of invective ... they haven't rejected it [the U.S.

war." After the President's televised speech announcing it to the world Tuesday night, Henry A. Kissinger, Mr. Nixon's national-security adviser, publicly de-tailed the secret negotiations that he had been conducting with the Communists for 30 months.

The President said that in his judgment "the purposes of peace will best be served by bringing out publicly the proposals we have been making in private," and the subsequent orchestration through administration officials is aimed at heightening the world's awareness of the eight-point plan.

Mr. Rogers today said he

Reds in Paris Doggedly Cling To Their Own Peace Program

By Henry Giniger

PARIS, Jan. 27 (NYT).-The Victnamese Communists reacted officially today to the latest American initiative by clinging doggedly to their own peace program as the only way to end the war in South Vietnam.

The eight points accepted to the Communists in secret, then made public by President Nixon Tuesday night, was formally presented at the 142d plenary session of the Paris peace talks by Pham Dang Lam of South Vietnam with support and additional explanation from William J. Porter, the American delegate.

Neither the presentation nor the explanations were acceptable to North Victorm and its Viet Cong ally which insisted that the United States first set a date for total military withdrawal and put an end to the present Saigon administration.

"If these two fundamental questions are not settled in a correct way there can be no settlement of the Vietnamese problem." Ly Van Sau, the Viet Cong spokesman, declared.

For the United States, the Communist reaction fell short of a categorical rejection. But Stephen Ledogar, the American press spokesman, said. "I am not trying to hold out hopes or to encourage any expectations." The reactions of Xuan Thuy, the North Vietnamese delegate who participated in some of the secret meetings that Henry A. Kissinger, Mr. Nixon's chief for-eign policy aide, held in Paris, and of Nguyen Van Tien, deputy chief of the Viet Cong delegation, revealed deep distrust of American intentions. They made it apparent that a basic question was who was to be in power in South Vietnam during the period of the elections. The objections raised by both men ran as fol-

Two Police Shot Dead In Ulster

IRA and Troops Duel at Border

BELFAST, Jan. 27 (UPD.-A pair of machine gunners firing from ambush killed two policemen and wounded another today in Londonderry, police said.

In another action, British troops fought a 2-1/2 hour gun battle with Irish Republican Army sulpers across the frontier with the Irish Republic.
In Londonderry, a police spokesman said Sgt. Peter Gilgun, 26, and Constable David Montgomery, 20, were among five policemen in a car fired on while patrolling Creggan Road, a Roman Catholic area of the city.

A rifleman opened fire from an alley, hitting the car. The driver stepped on the gas and the auto-mobile shot ahead, the spokesman said. But 30 yards down the road two men with machine guns sprang from the shadows, catching the vehicle in a crossive. By the time they reached a police station, Sgt. Gilgun and Constable Montgomery were dead. A third policeman in the car suffered leg wounds.

Two-Year Toll 217

The deaths of the two policemen brought to 217 the number of persons killed in two years of Northern Ireland violence. It climaxed a week of assassination attempts against members of the Royal Ulster Constabulary, the British province's police force.

At Forkhill, on the southeast border with the Irish Republic near Newry, British troops fired at least 4,500 rounds of ammunition at gummen in the republic who opened fire on a patrol of Scots Dragoon Guards, an army spokesman said. He said the gun-opposition Christian Democrats against acceptance of the treaties. The motion was rejected by the same 6-5 margin. Though Mr. Brandt's ruling coalition out-votes the opposition in the Bundesrat committees, the position is reversed in the full Bundesrat, where the opposition has a 21-20 edge.

This is because some states have more than one vote in the plenum. At this stage, however, the Bundestag (lower house), where the ruling Social Democrat-Free Democrat coalition has only a sixvote edge, presents a greater threat to the treaties than the upper house.

This is because the treaties need only the Bundestag's vote of approval.

On Jan. 14, the upper house legal committee decided the treaties conform to the West German Federal Constitution and that, because of this, they do not need the Bundesrat's approval as well However, the Bundezrat ple-

3 Dropouts' Reef Refuge in South Seas

'Republic of Minerva' a Washout?

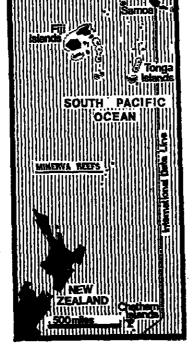

SUVA, Fiji, Jan. 27 (AP).— Three Americans, distilusioned with Western life, have gotten away from it all and proclaimed a utopian republic on a wreckstrewn South Seas reef that vanishes under water at high tide. They raised the flag of their minuscule republic recently after sailing 450 miles from Piji. One of the trio, Mark Oliver, formerly of Carson City, Nevsaid they claimed sea-washed Minerva Reef for the Ocean Life Research Foundation, a U.S.-British organization. He said that until now it has belonged to

He did not go into further detail But he said that the group hadalready built two small coral and sand islands on the reef, thus conforming with international law that unoccupied land which can be built on can be claimed by anyone who does put up a structure there.

The small islands that Mr. Oliver said had been constructed apparently were designed to keep the pioneers feet dry, for Minerva is actually two reefs 18 miles apart, which vanish under water at high tide. But the lagoons they enclose are considered safe anchorages for large ships.

The Fiti government confirmed that it had received a letter from the "Republic of Minerva," But Prime Minister Rati Sur Kemisese Mara said yesterday that he had spurned the offer of "friendly relations" with the reef-dwellers and was "not inclined" to recognize the little republic.

One-Term Presidency of Six Years 'In Nation's Interest,' Johnson Says WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (UPI) .- Former President Lyndon

B. Johnson said today a one-term presidency of six years "would probably be in the best interests of the nation." And at the start of another election year, Mr. Johnson said that while he is not particularly eager to get out on the "coldchicken circuit" again, he is ready to campaign for the Democrats if "it could help my party or help my country. . . . "

Mr. Johnson was interviewed by CBS commentator Walter Cronkite at the LBJ Library at Austin, Texas, for an hour-long show, the third in a series, He said of the presidency:

I'm not sure that we won't come to a single term. I believe that if a man knew that he had just one term and that he had to get everything through in six years, that he didn't have to play to any political group and he didn't have to satisfy any segment of our society, and this was the only chance he was going to have and he couldn't put it off, I think it would probably—and I say probably—be in the best interests of the nation.
"I would like to see us try it," Mr. Johnson said, "although

I don't think we're likely to do it right now, but I think it's worth exploring." A proposed constitutional amendment to provide for a single, six-year presidential term was introduced last year in the Senate by Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, of Montana and the senior Senate Republican, George Alken, of Vermont,

France Asks EEC to Revive Plans for a Monetary Union

BRUSSELS, Jan. 27 (Reuters). ment and because EEC members -France today called for an were currently all pursuing simurgent reactivation of Common Market plans for economic and monetary union and said currency fluctuation margins among EEC states should be cut to a maximum of 2.25 percent.

The request was made by France's permanent representative to the Common Market, Jean-Marc Boegner, at a regular weekly meeting of the committee of the EEC representatives here.

Informed sources said that Mr. Boegner told his colleagues the maximum fluctuation margin among the parities of EEC currencies at any given time should be reduced from the 4.5 percent agreed upon during the inter-national monetary settlement in Washington last month. For EEC members to make full use between themselves of the wider bands agreed on in Washington would raise difficulties for the community in both the farm and industrial sectors, Mr. Boe-gner said. In any case, he continued, the moment had now come to launch anew the process of economic and monetary union, which ori-ginally provided for an initial reduction of EEC currency margins from 0.75 to 0.60 percent on either side of parity.

Conditions were ripe both because of the Washington settle-

It called for "circumspection" in the use of voluntary agreements to limit imports in the United States, warning that these techniques encourage "cartels and exporters organizations which we for many years have sought to eliminate."

"The need to protect U.S. industries from market disruptions in the near future will be significantly reduced by the recent realignment of currencies," the report said.

U. S. positions on agricultural trade barriers, generalized preference for exports of developing countries and East-West trade were all restated with no change.

Farm Policies Hit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP). -Negotiations to tear town agricultural trade barriers will fail unless major nations' farm pricesupport systems are changed, the CEA report said.

Price-support techniques "now used in most industrial countries, including the United States, are major impediments to the development of freer trade in agriculture." it said.

The council said that many developed countries, including the United States, followed protectionist policies in agriculture.

This was particularly true in the European Community, where internal prices have been pegged substantially above import prices through a complex system of import levies and export subsidies."

"There is agreement that freer trade in agricultural products can occur only if the basic problem of agricultural adjustment and the techniques for providing assistance to farmers are dealt with in an internstional context," the report said, adding that the time is rine for talks on farm price supports of major nations.

Reuss Scores Program WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (Reuters) -Reo. Henry R. Reuss, D., Wis., called President Nixon's international economic program lackadaisical because it avoided the two key issues of monetary reform and trade barriers.

The report contains no profor monetary reform in spite of a consensus among leading countries that special drawing rights should steadily replace the near $50 billion in U.S. obligations held abroad, Rep. Reuss said in a statement "To fail to act would present a constant temptation to foreign countries to resort to protective devices in order to avoid accumulating excessive dollar holdings," he said.

He also criticized the report because it contained no legisla-tive proposals for authorizing negotiations to reduce both tariff and non-tariff trade barriers.

A plan to speed up economic and monetary union—the process intended to lead to a common EEC currency in 10 years has also been suggested by the EEC Executive Commission and will be put before foreign ministers the Six meeting here next Monday and Tuesday.

The commission's idea is to bring EEC fluctuation margins down to a total of 2 percent_1 percent on either side of parity. But the sources said France's ideas were not incompatible with this since the figure put forward by Mr. Boegner was a maximum.

The sources ruled out the possibility of any decisions on the commission's proposals until a meeting of EEC finance and for-eign ministers scheduled on Feb.

Mandate Modifications

Meanwhile, informed sources said today that the EEC Executive Commission will propose modifications to its present mandate for trade negotiations with the United States.

The sources said that the commission would make its proposals verbally to a session of the EEC's decision-making Council of Min-isters next Monday to lessen chances of details leaking out.

If the proposals are accepted, the sources said, the negotiations, which the United States wants successfully concluded before Congress approves the dollar's devaluation, can be tied up at the next round here next Thursday.

Curbs to Stay Through 1972

(Continued from Page 1) money supply growth should be prevented from gyrating wildly. But the report does not say what rate of money supply growth will be necessary to meet the target. Nor would Mr. Stein easborate, because "it's strategically not useful for discussing in this [press conference] room." Mr. Stein said that the 1973 recovery would be "propelled" by almost every sector of the economy, including 8 percent gains for business investment and consumer spending; an $8 billion boost in inventory accumulation; a shift back toward single-family home construction that will in-by 15 percent, and "highly expansive" spending by the federal and state-local governments.

On the federal side, Mr.

Stein said, "there would be a very considerable push" because of a rise of $29 billion in the National Income Accounts (NIA) budget for calendar 1972, a 13 percent improvement over calendar year 1971—biggest in recent years with most of it

crease money outlays in that field coming in the first half of the year. The projected deficit for calendar year 1972 on the NIA basis is $36 billion, compared to $23 billion last year. Mr. Stein said that the stimulative nature the budget "was not well revealed" in the more traditional accounting cited earlier this week in the budget message. Note of Ontimism

The President's own message conveyed a note of optimism that his new economic policy launched last Aug. 15 is beginning to work. He noted that the year had started "on a note of much greater confidence . . . but much remains to be done."

He ticked off three important problems, with reduction of the unemployment rate from 6 percent named as "the great" one. The other two are to "persevere" with the price-wage control system until "its objective is achieved," and reform of the international economic system. The CEA's report also dwelt extensively on the unemployment problem, candidly admitting that the economy had not met more ambitious and hopeful goals stated a year ago.

The report noted that the 4 percent goal as the accepted target of full employment had without stating a new definition, said that the persistence of "a combination of high unemployment and rapid inflation" suggested that one or both "had become structural features of the American economy."

The CEA said it would undertake a study of this problem and report on it in the 1973 message. But the clear inference to be drawn from this year's discussion is that high levels of "transitional" unemployment will require increased emphasis on manpower and training programs in the year ahead. In a statistical annex, the CEA revealed that seasonal adjustments of the monthly unemployment data show the December, 1971, rate at 6.0 per-cent, instead of 6.1 percent as first reported; and that June, which was first reported as 5.6 percent was actually 5.8 per-

For the year as a whole, the rate was 5.9 percent, the same as carlier reported, compared with 4.9 percent in 1970 and 3.5 percent in 1969.

PARIS, Jan. 27 (IHT).—West-ern observers said today, follow-Moscow a mandate to negotiate for them. ing the Warsaw Pact communi-

Interestingly, both NATO and Warsaw Pact attitudes on Mutual and Balanced Force Reductions (MBFR) are beginning to resemble the French position. The French long have argued that force reductions should not be a bloc affair, and this idea was incorporated into the Prague declaration yesterday.

The key paragraphs stated that

"the reduction of armed forces and armaments—both foreign and national—should be solved in such a way that there would be no damage to the countries participating in such a reduc-tion," and that the reductions "cannot be the exclusive concern of the existing military-political groupings in Europe."

It was this second phrase that Western analysts believe may have ended the Brosio mission before it ever began. The Prague declaration also gave strong indications that the Warsaw Pact wants force reductions to be taken up at the long-awaited European security conference, preparations for which are still expected to get underway in Hel-Big Four signing of the final Berlin accord.

Despite U.S. assurances that there will be no bilateral negotiations with Moscow, most, if not all of the U.S. allies in NATO now look upon force reductions in Europe with an extremely jaundiced eye. In fact some observers believe that if there is one thing that encourages Moscow's interest in MBFR talks, it the growing hostility of the Western allies to them.

Even the United States, which is the nominal leader in pushing for the talks, is becoming increasingly wary of them. There seems to be a general feeling now that the French approach -one of categorically refusing any military reductions until political détente is achieved-may be the best one. It is not believed that political détente can be achieved while the Russian Navy continues to grow in the Atlantic and Mediterranean and while Soviet designs and intentions in several "gray areas" in and around Europe are not clear.

Two other factors influence this thinking: first, that Western troop reductions should not be begun while the West German Ostpolitik is underway; and, secondly, that the new German contribution of $1 billion per year to the total U.S. cost of $1.2 billion per year to maintain 310,000 troops in Germany has reduced the urgency of the troop cuts. The Warsaw Pact reiterated yesterday that its member nations would be willing to discuss national as well as foreign troops, thus sweetening the cake for the West. By discussing national troop levels, the various nations could achieve not only a troop withdrawal, but a genuine reduction of its men under arms, 3.3 million men for the Soviet Union and 2.7 million for the United States. But the key to any talks is certain to be the 31 Soviet divisions now stationed in the territory of its Warsaw Pact neighbors, 20 in East Germany, five in Czechoslovakia, four in Hungary and two in Poland. There are currently extensive

NATO studies underway that seek to come up with a formula that would achieve the withdrawal of many of these divisions in return for a "balanced" Western withdrawal

Some observers even think it is possible that the Soviet Union will eventually announce a partial, unilateral withdrawal, which the Russians could turn into both a propaganda victory and a prod to Congress to vote a corresponding

Agency Can Order Discrimination Halt

By David E. Rosenbaum WASHINGTON, Jan 27 (NYT).—The Senate, by a vote of 48 to 46, agreed yesterday to give the Equal Employment Oppor-tunity Commission the power to order companies to stop discrimination in their employment

The vote was an important vic-tory for organized labor, civil rights groups and women's rights organizations and a defeat for the Nixon administration which wants to deny the commission the authority to issue "cease-and-desist" orders when it finds cases of job discrimination.

The administration has recommended that the commission be authorized only to institute suits in federal court on behalf of persons subject to discrimination.

The vote defeated an amendment offered by Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R., Colo., that would have substituted the administration's plan for the one favored by civil rights groups. Action Pending

With several relatively minor amendment riders pending the Senate was unable to complete action on the bill. But yester-day's vote was the critical one, since it virtually assured that when the bill is finally passed by the Senate it will contain the provision allowing cease-anddesist orders. The narrow margin of victory was provided by three Democratic presidential candidates who returned from campaign trips to vote against the Dominick amendment. Sen. George Mc-Govern of South Dakota return-ed to Washington from Chicago. Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine had been in Kentucky and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minne-sota returned from Wisconsin. Last September, in passing the bill, the House rejected the strong enforcement powers voted yesterday by the Senate and adopted instead, by a five-vote margin the administration's pro-margin, the administration's pro-posal to allow the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to go into federal court to stop job discrimination. Once the overall bill passes the Senate, a House-Senate confer-ence committee will try to reconcile the differences.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 27 (Reuters).—President Salvador Allende Gossens, trying to broaden his cabinet after 14 months in office, ran into unexpected trouble tonight when the Radicals decided to withdraw from the coalition government.

Political sources said that the Radicals, a minority group in Mr. Allende's mainly Socialist-Communist coalition, had objected to their reduced role in the proposed new cabinet.

The decision by the Radical leadership was disclosed shortly before Mr. Allende was due to announce his new administration over nation-wide radio and television. The 16-man cabinet resigned last Thursday to give him free hand in the reorganization.

"Mention of wives' participation or lack thereof... may not be made in performance evaluation reports, inspectors' efficiency reports, or training evalua-tions," the report said. Israel's increased aerial power would result in more deep penetration raids into Egypt in case of another war, Mr. Sadat said in a speech Tuesday. Observers said the president was likely to ask for additional Soviet assistance to offset the Israeli gains. It will be Mr. Sadat's third visit to Moscow as president. Knesset Redefines 'Nationality' In 'Who Is a Jew?' Controversy

TEL AVIV. Jan. 27 (NYT).—In the latest episode in the "who is a Jew?" controversy here, a naval officer who won a victory two years ago suffered a setback yesterday when Premier Golda Meir obtained legislation from the Knesset providing that only people qualifying as Jews under rabbinic law shall be recognized as Jews by nationality.

Comdr. Benyamin Shalit, a psychologist, is married to a gentile from Britain. Neither partner professes any religion. Under rabbinic law, children take the religion of their mother. The Shalits agreed in the case two years ago that their children should be registered officially as of Jewish nationality, but with no religion specified. Nationality here denotes ethnic background rather than citizenship in the Israeli state. When the government balked, the officer took his case to a high Israeli court. In a major decision, it ordered the state registrar to comply with the parents' wishes, despite the rabbinical interpretation. Parliament's action yesterday apparently reversed this decision.

Vietnam: Same Old Shell Game

Those who value form over substance may find a political triumph in Mr. Nixon's new "plan for peace" in Indochina—a veritable political masterstroke, courtesy of nationwide TV. Sen. Mansfield, for example, hailed it as a long step forward; Senators Muskle and Humphrey welcomed it as a new initiative. The President himself called it "generous," as if generosity had any place in our dealings with a ruthless and relentless adversary. Republican sympathizers are delighting in the way the rug is supposed to have been pulled from under those who have been advocating a "date certain" for our withdrawal in exchange for our prisoners of war-on the theory that this is what the President has been secretly offering. This is what was meant to dazzle us-along with the drama of Dr. Klssinger's 13 transatlantic trips, the secret dealings, the surprise. We are meant to believe, in short, that the President has "gone the extra mile for peace" and that whatever happens nextcontinued impasse, a new Communist offensive, an increase in American casualties, a prolonged, open-ended war-is not his fault. Well, you can make the argument that it is Hanol's fault, or even that the whole war is Hanoi's (or Peking's or Moscow's) fault, and not gain much by doing so. You can prove, as Mr. Nixon did, that the enemy has been deceptive, but that is hardly a revelation. You can assert that Mr. Nixon has tried what some of his critics have long been urging him to try, but even if that were so, (which it isn't) it doesn't help much when it doesn't work-except perhaps athome, politically for a time.

Last November 12, just about the time when Dr. Kissinger was busiest on his Parisian rounds, the President was asked if he had any reason for encouragement concerning prospects for release of our POWs, and he replied: "No reason for encouragement that I can talk about publicly. I can say, however, that we are pursuing this subject, as I have indicated on several occasions in a number of channels..." So the likelihood of private dealings was always there and the real surprise is in the terms the President was offering "the other side." There is, in fact, no better way to measure the significance of the President's hitherto secret "plan for peace" than by comparing it with one he was proposing publicly in October, 1970-when there were 384,000 American troops in South Vietnam. At that time Mr. Nixon announced that the United States would offer in Paris a plan for:

"An agreed timetable for complete withdrawal as part of an over-all settle-

An immediate and unconditional release of all prisoners of war held by both

A fair political solution, which would "reflect the existing relationship of political forces" in South Vietnam. The United States, he said, would abide by the outcome (whether one reached by negotiation or election, he did not specify) and he added that "We know that when the conflict ends, the other side will be there, and the only kind of settlement that will endure is one both sides have an interest in preserving (in other words, an eventual piece of the action in Saigon was held out to the Com-

An Indochina peace conference, to negotiate a wider settlement which would be guided by the terms of the Geneva accords of 1954 (Vietnam) and 1962 (Laos).

A cease-fire, to be internationally supervised.

That, then, was the Nixon peace plan fifteen months ago, publicly put forth in Paris. What is essentially new or different about the one Dr. Kissinger has been pushing secretly? Essentially nothing, except that elaborate election machinery has been added-an electoral process made in America, rooted in democratic institutions which are alien to the Vietnamese, and one to which Hanoi has been consistently hostile. That, and an eye-catching deadline of six months for U.S. troop withdrawal, which is about as uncertain a "date certain" as could be devised, depending as it does on an agreement not just on prisoner exchange.

This, we are asked to believe, is a new peace plan whose unilateral, public disclosure is likely to break the impasse with Hanoi. This, we are told, is progress, when in fact it is more of the same old shell game. It may work, for a time, for as this game has been played with the Vietnam war over the years, the hand of a government in possession of a secret and in command of prime time has proved more often than not to be quicker than the eye. But the real news here is not of a new peace plan, or even of an earnest secret initiative. What the President told us was nothing more or less than that he and Dr. Kissinger have been privately pressing upon Hanoi a rather shopworn peace plan, only slightly refurbished, and that over a period of 30 months they have been had; he is telling us that he still wants it done the American way and that the North Vietnamese are still not buying it: he is telling us that negotiation isn't working, and that this, by his own admission, leaves the alternative of "Vietnamization" which he is frank enough to describe as the 'long voyage home."

So unless there is a lot the President isn't telling us, we are just where we were before we learned of Dr. Kissinger's secret travel: Still insistent on having it our way: still counting on the North Vietnamese to abandon the goals of some 30 years of fighting; still unwilling to act upon the President's own, public estimates (also offered in Oct. 1970) that the "South Vietnamese have gained the capability to handle the situation -and with less and less to offer, as our ground forces shrink, in exchange for our prisoners of war.

THE WASHINGTON POST.

Openings Toward Peace

Henry Kissinger has placed on the flexibility of the administration's new Vietnam peace proposals strengthens hope that they may yet provide a key to ending this tragic conflict, despite their initial unacceptability to North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

There are obvious shortcomings in the plan revealed by President Nixon, and the American leverage for any kind of negotiated political settlement has been measurably reduced by Vietnamization and its abysmal failure to bring closer a cessation of hostilities. But neither factor should overshadow the very significant advances the revised proposals represent over any previous American position—especially since they are offered as a jumping-off point for what could become the first real bargaining since the frustrating negotiations at Paris began three

The North Vietnamese have criticized the President for disclosing that secret talks took place between Dr. Kissinger and top Communist diplomats in Paris over an extended period-talks which were continued at a higher level and with greater intensity than most Americans even suspected. But this disclosure could have a positive impact on the prospects for a negotiated settlement. It reveals the President's sensitivity to public criticism of his peace posture and gives Americans for the first time an opportunity to judge their government's real position and perhaps to effect changes.

One opening that invites further discussion is the President's suggestion that the military issues in his proposal could be separated from the more difficult political questions. This approach has its pitfalls. Mr. Nixon did not offer a simple withdrawal of American forces in return for prisoners of war as Sen. Mansfield and others have urged The President tied withdrawal also to acceptance of a cease-fire throughout Indochina, something the Communists oppose because under existing conditions a total cease-fire would tend to solidify Saigon's political control over most of the South Vietnamese population. But the Communists themselves have proposed a partial ceasefire between their troops and withdrawing allied forces. The cease-fire issue could be a subject for fruitful negotiations

Even the wide gap between the two sides on political questions has been narrowed. The President made a major concession to long-standing Communist demands when he offered the resignations of President Thieu and Vice-President Huong one month before proposed new supervised elections. The other side is understandably unhappy about this arrangement as presented, especially Mr. Nixon's suggestion that the chairman of the Senate, a Thieu man, should head a caretaker government.

But the timing of Mr. Thieu's departure from government is surely negotiable. And it is not inconceivable that the functions of the broadly based electoral commission proposed by Mr. Nixon could be enlarged to approach the wider role assigned to a "government of national concord" in the Viet Cong plan.

In light of the frightful losses that all sides have already suffered and of the imminent threat of a new escalation of the fighting, it would be the height of irresponsibility to write off the new Nixon proposals before these and other possible openings toward neace have been thoroughly explored. WASHINGTON.—North Vietnam's suspicions about President Nixon's trip to Peking may be the unexplained reason why Hanoi broke off secret talks with the United States, many experts Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger publicly did his utmost Wednesday to discount the probability of any direct link between talks on settlement of the war and preparations for the President's Feb. 21 visit to China.

Kissinger's additional disclosures Wednesday about his secret negotiations with Hand's envoys, however, suggested to many specialists that North Vietnam's suspicions about the intentions have been heightened neverthe-

Show of Force

In recent weeks many Nixon administration officials openly have interpreted North Vietnam's developing military offensive in Indochina as a show of force timed to coincide with the President's trip to Peking, as well as Tct, the Vietnamese lunar New Year, on Feb. 15. What now has been added to the public record by the Nixon administration suggesta even more circumstantial connection between there events. If this speculation is correct, North Vietnam is now freezing secret negotiations while it attempts a new show of force on the battlefields of Indochina and intensifies its public attacks on the United States. Most U.S. officials scree on that assessment. The Kissinger chronology, as related it Wednesday, shows that on the way back from his first screet trip to Peking, he stopped in Paris on July 12 for s meeting with North Vietnamese envoys there. Two meetings later in Paris, on Aug. 16, Kissinger presented an eight-point proposal, which he said was "turned down" at a subsequent meeting on Sept. 13. Then on Oct. 1, Kissinger said, the United States sent to North Vietnam its current, revised, eight-point proposal. Kissinger did not mention in his chronology Wednesday, which was centered on his North Vietnamese probes rather than on his Peking negotiations, that on Oct. 20 he was back in Peking on his second trip to prepare for the President's visit. Simultaneously, his remarks show. the United States, about Oct. 25, received a North Vietnamese reply demurring at a proposed Nov. Kissinger said that, instead, the date of Nov. 20 was suggested, and the United States accepted only to be informed on Nov. 17 that Le Duc Tho was ill and could not attend the planned meeting in Paris.

Interesting Question

It was at that point, Kissinger said Wednesday, that discussions ceased. What happened to halt the interchange, Kissinger said, "is a very interesting question ... I don't want to speculate on that, because it is a question that also occupies us."

There is other information. however, that has stimulated speculation about what might have contributed to the abortion of the secret talks. American intelligence sources

His year-end interview with Time magazine, for example. 'On the Brink'

"I am confident" he was quoted, "that the United States right now is on the brink of exercising its power to do good in the world. Such good as has never been done in the history of civilization because we now can muster our moral force, our esonomic force and we, of course, have the military power to back up our words. Our aim is to build a structure of peace such as we could not dream of after World War II. . . I have probably the most unusual opportunity, the greatest opportunity, of any President in history due to the fact that just in the way the cards happen to fall I may be able to do things which can create a new structure of peace in the world." In a subsequent television interview with the Columbia Broadcasting System, the President repeated what he had often said before: that he is not one to arouse great expectations that create morale-shattering disil-lusionment when unfulfilled, as some of his predecessors have been. He seemed to have for-gotten his Time interview. He was back to Attorney General John Mitchell's admonition to the administration's critics to observe what it did, not what it said.

Nixon cannot have it both The irony is that he doesn't need to have it both ways. What he has been doing has been so sensible and so widely approved by the electorate that his out-party challengers have seldom been as dispirited as they are now. In international affairs, the President must be credited with shrewd detection of opportunities and beld exploitation of them. Announcements of his plans to go to Peking and to Moscow, followed by his series of bilateral summit conferences, were opportunistic strikes. He is probably right that he is the first post-World War II President who could have taken such initiatives, especially the approach to

And it may be that the President's talk to Time magazine will be vindicated by long-term results. At this point, it is still talk. Too many questions remain about the adequacy of the moral, economic and even military force of the United States to justify firm confidence that it will succeed as a world peacemaker. The economy is only now showing some signs of recovery from lethergy and inflation. The natou's morality is widely ques-tioned by many of the young and a few of the not-so-young. And, in relation to the Soviet Union, U.S. military might has alipped. The presence of U.S. Freet units in Indian waters falled to deter India from overrunning East Pakistan.

Jolting

On economic fronts, national and international, Mr. Nixon can't be convincingly faulted. By joiting the major trading nations with a 10 percent surcharge on imports and holding out buy-American tax incentives, he and Treasury Secretary John Connally brought off a currency revaluation coup of major consequence. The method was rough, even brutal, but the result was salutary. Perhaps nothing gentler would have worked.

Indochina remains a fly in the Nixon ointment, not as big a fly as it was to President Johnson, but nevertbeless a nagging worry. His position is understandable. He will leave a residual U.S. armed force and continue to employ air power against Ho Chi Minh Trails bordering North Vietnam. Laos and Cambodia, meanwhile pushing Vietnamization in the hope that indigenous forces, with American logistical help, can eventually take care of themselves. However justified, this course will not be popular and it will be exploited by the Nixon opposition, with emphasis on the prediction that Vietnam will not be even a minor campaign issue next fall seems overly optimistic at this juncture.

As 1972 begins, the President must be credited with promising starts in the most urgent areas of national concern. But, as he conceded at one point in the Time interview, the jury is still There will failures as well as successes. Diplomacy as once known is at an end—but the last to know it are the diplomats and their foreign ministries. The inflammation in their ranks and consequent deterioration of their capacities is all too often evident. In diplomatic as in monetary affairs there is a kind of Gresham's Law which sees had money driving out the good.

Decisions

Once an effective ambassador required cultivation, perspicacity and the ability to make decisions. Communications took a long time and sometimes there was the need for swift action. Even as recently as 1945 Avere'l Harriman, while U.S. envoy in Moscow, personally decided to exclude Russia from Allied military occupation of

The diplomat was often a personage. France employed as ambassadors the famous Paul Claudel and Saint-John Perse (Alexis Léger). George Seferiadis, a Greek ambassador to Britain. won the Nobel Prize for Literature as the post "Seferis." Even the 19th-century diminutive U.S. overseas representation included Washington Irving and Nathaniel Hawthorne.

But the need for experienced decision-takers or intellectual luminaries has faded in the mechanized modern world. There are and will be exceptions. A notable case is Walworth Barbour. who has been American envoy here for more than half of Israel's life. His wisdom and decisiveness have been responsible for avoiding several dangerous crises and solving others.

II one considers today's plethora of independent states and mini-states, each of which has come to demand exchanges of embassies, one sees the game has recome ridiculous. There is no urgent reason for the United States to maintain ambassadors in Burundi or Maurithus, for example.

Moreover, the need to fill all posts transcends the ability of the Foreign Service and tempts U.S. presidents even further to pay off campaign contributors on an absurdly lavish scale by dispatching them around the mushrooming diplomatic world.

It would be wiser and cheaper to pare swollen staffs and do more international business at the UN glass menagerie in New York to which almost all countries are accredited. Even such envoys of the prosperous United States as Ellis Briggs and John Tuthill found they could work more ef-ficiently as well as more cheaply with half the staff allotted.

Norway has begun to think aloud about doing away with am-bassadors altogether. One idea discussed in Oslo is that teams of experts could be maintained and flown abroad if and as required to represent Norwegian interests. With all the multilateral bodies now existing—such as the UN.

the Organization of African Unity or the Organization of American States, etc.—surely there are enough common meeting grounds to allow nations to handle bilateral business.

The happiest ambassador I ever knew was a Nepalese general who, years ago, served simultaneously in Paris, London and Washington. Whenever he received a rare message from Katmandu, he handed it to his local No. 2, told him to say the ambassador was traveling, and promptly took off. The unhappiest ambassador I knew was the envoy of an East European land, proud of its cuisine, who was deprived of his cock by budget-cutters at home. Jean Laloy, a brilliant French diplomat, regarding an age in which cabinet ministers super-envoys jet around the world, suggested in a book six years ago ("Entre Guerres et Paix") that much of today's diplomatic burden could be borne by permanent working groups of experts set up in a nation's capital to handle specific problems as they arose.

It is certainly time to consider these and other approaches with the idea of reducing costs and lowering bureaucratic Towers of Babel as they rise in even the smallest capitals. At one moment the United States had four ambassadors in Paris and three in Beirut. Hasn't the moment arrived to repeal traditional diplomacy if those are its current methods?

"fréedom songs." Although the jazz elements of music as far from the church as niehtclubs, Miss Jackson was uncompromising in her efforts to keep gospel song devotional. She had, in the early 1930s, declined efforts of jazz figures such as Louis Armstrong to make her a jazz or blues singer.

"Blues are the songs of spair" Miss Jackson had said Gospel songs are the songs of hope. When you sing gospel, you have a feeling there is a cure for what's wrong, but when you are through with the blues you've got nothing to rest on."

Miss Jackson was born in New Orleans Oct. 26, 1911, the third of six children of a man who was a stevedore by day, a harber by night and a clergyman on Sunday. Her home, left motherless when she was six years old, was an impoverished but still self-respectsidence between the railroad tracks and the Mississippi River

Never Bead Music

Miss Jackson, who never learned to read music, began singing as a little girl, as she said, "because I was knely." She left school in the eighth grade and by the age of 12 was working 10 hours a day as a cook and washn. In 1928, she left New Orleans to live with an uncle in Chicago. There, she worked as a hotel maid for $7.50 a week, and was a laundress and babysitter.

In Chicago, she joined the Greater Salem Baptist Church Her large contralto voice soon stood out in the church chorus and she became a soloist. She participated in a cross-country gospel crusade in the early 1930s and becan to attract attention in the Negro community. Her recording, "The Wheat and the Tares," was made in 1934. With her earnings, she opened a beauty parlor and a flower shop and began purchasing real estate. Miss Jackson's following began to grow beyond the Negro community and church circles. Her New York debut was made at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, and her Carnegie Hall debut was Miss Jackson appeared briefly in the films "Imitation of Life," and "St. Louis Blues." But she was best known through personal appearances and her more than 15 long-playing recordings.

In 1960, Miss Jackson sang for official Washington at Constitution Hall from the same stage that had been refused Marian Anderson 20 years earlier.

Miss Jackson lived in a $40,000 brick ranch-style home on the South, Side of Chicago. Her moving into the all white neighborhood had sparked a racial diset was fired through her window and a police guard had been posted in front of her home for a year.

Miss Jackson, who worked increasingly in recent years to raise money for integration, had said: "I still have hopes that my singing will break down some of the hate and fear that divide the white and colored people in this country."

Polish Jesuits Hoping for Still More Freedom

ROME, Jan. 27 (AP).—Jesuits working in Poland have expressed 'cautious optimism" that the church may soon exercise its mis-sion in that country "with maximum liberty," Jesuit headquarters said today.

Polish Jesuits reported they "enjoy considerable freedom under the Communist regime there, and are able to carry out their apostolic work with notable suc-cess," a communiqué said.

The report of the Polish Jesuits emerged during a recent meeting here of major Jesuit superiors from European Communist areas with the general of the Society of Jesus, Pedro Arrupe. The church in Poland is permitted to own churches, semi-naries and parish houses, the report said. Priests can freely preach Catholic doctrine without government interference. They can, and do, denounce injustices. They can also, provided their tone is moderate, criticize objectively government activities, the communiqué said.

If Benito Cazora, the commissioner, has his way, the city will also start enlarging the downtown areas from which all private motor vehicles are banned By August, most of Rome's historic core from the Colosseum to the Flaminian Way and from the Vatican to the Ports Pia would be accessible only to buses, taxis—and pedestrians. These are the most revolutionary features of a radical traific reform project that Mr. Cazora, in agreement with the heads of the two municipal transit systems, will submit to the city government next week. The plan is scheduled to be disd by the city parliament

next month. The Only Way

The promoters of the new plan assert that it is the only way of relieving chronic traffic congestion in the city center and lower the level of air pollution which at present makes old marble crumble and Rome's famous pine trees wither The trouble is that Rome has at present only a caretaker adnistration. The 80-mo city parliament will in all like lihood give priority to politics and try to set up a new municipal government before considering traffic reform. Mayor Clelic Darida and his city government, including the traffic commissioner, formally resigned last month. They are staying in office to handle routine business until a new administration takes over. The city government conducted a nine-day experiment of free rides for everybody on the municipal transit network from Dec. 30 to Jan. 7. The results of this test encouraged the traffic commissioner to propose his new permanent reform plan.

Informed sources said that the Chinese will almost surely bring up the subject of communications satellites when President Nixon visits Peking next month, either directly with the President or with communications specialists who will travel with him.

"The Chinese have a primitive communications network with a limited hook-in to the outside world," one source said. "The only way they can modernize their network, do it cheaply and quickly and plug into the outside world would be through communications satellites."

At present, the People's Republic of China has no satellite or even cable connection abroad. It does have eight short-wave radio circuits out of the mainland to Tokyo which allow telephone calls in and out of China and a small amount of message traffic. but no facsimile or television.

Russia, Japan to Open Peace Talks in '72

TOKYO, Jan. 27 (Reuters). The Soviet Union and Japan agreed today to start negotiations for a peace treaty before the end of the year.

The agreement was announced in a communiqué after talks here between Soviet Foreign Minister Andrel A. Gromyko and Japanese Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda.

In 1965, the two countries restored diplomatic relations, sev-ered since World War II, but have not signed a formal peace treaty.

The main obstacle has been a dispute over four islands just north of Japan, which the Russians occupied at the end of the war in 1945. Japan has insisted on having them back, but until Mr. Gromyko's visit to Tokyo this week. Moscow had refused to discuss the matter.

Mr. Fukuda indicated at a news conference that Japan was pre-pared to be flexible over the issue. He said that although the Japanese stand remained unchanged. he could not predict whether it would change during the negotiations for a peace treaty.

Added Conditions

The Soviet Union said in 1956 that it was prepared to return two of the islands if a formal peace treaty were signed. In 1960, it added another condition: the removal of U.S. military bases from Japan. These still exist. Moscow's desire for closer ties with Tokyo stems in part from moves by both Japan and the United States towards rapprochement with China. The Soviet Union also wants Japan to help exploit its Siberian resources.

The communique said that "increased friendly and cooperative

Paris-Jour Ends Publication After Journalists' Go on Strike

PARIS, Jan. 27 (IRT).-The owner of the Paris newspaper Paris-Jour announced today that publication of the paper would cease as of today. The announcement came on the heels of a journalists' union strike there yesterday to protest the firing of 33 persons.

The demise of Paris-Jour, which has been losing money for several years, comes in the midst of a French press crisis which will have resulted in some 200 e-1itorial layoffs in the six months ending next March 1. The gov-ernment has set up two special committees to study the crisis.

FASHION

Radical Looks of the Future

By Eugenia Sheppard PARIS, Jan. 27.—Most of the fashion houses here are going through a transition period and making radical changes in their Way of life.

"It is too much for Gérard Pipart to design two complete have deciphered the code sysmade-to-order and two readyto-wear collections," says Robert Ricci, who hastily racked up a show this week because so many were disappointed when the rumor went around that the house might not show. He may do the same in July, but after that the routine swings to spring and fall.

Earlier today, Pierre Cardin. who is not showing this week, confirmed that he will hold his big press show early in April, when the store buyers from all over the world converge on Paris to buy ready-to-wear. "It will include everything," he said. From then on, the routine will be every six months—but October and April instead of January and

The single Ricci collection that will stand for the house will start by being 40 percent made-to-order and 60 percent ready-towear but since Gérard Pipart is young and talented and takes more naturally to ready-to-wear, made-to-order will soon

Ricci explains its present status this way. For the boutique part of the collection, Pipart will naturally use less-expensive cuts. For the made-to-order clothes he will be free to experiment. Customers who want to order boutique styles but need fittings can have one or two, for an extra charge of $30 each, or even have them made in couture

The first combination collection will, like Cardin's, be launched in April, but the official customer show won't be until late next summer. Each number on the Ricci program will be identito-wear but by the time they tem, some of the more impetuous ladies may find it easier to take

In the collection at Ricci now, both parts are good, and not even Robert Ricci can tell them apart. Pipart was the first to revive the ragian-sieeve coat, bought by Sydney Gittler for the Ohrbach's collection. He has a follow-up in a white coat, but doesn't go nearly as far in the Dior is enlarging its boutique fashions by Marc Bohan and giving them more space. For the present, though, the house will stick to the traditional opening dates of January and July.

Mme. Gres is the Paris designer east disturbed by the changing times. She doesn't want to design ready-to-wear, which is just one of the things that makes her

Because she doesn't know the word trend and each piece in her collection is completely personal, Mme. Grès has her up and down seasons, but this one is way up. Her evening gowns are the most ravishing she has turned out in a long time and for dramatics and design they beat anything in Paris.

Take her huge dresses that are chir and amusing and show stoppers all at the same time. One of them is plaid organdy with an enormous skirt and giant, puffed es. Another is a dream of a pale pink silk organdy smock, made of goodness knows how many yards of fabric, with the shadow of dark blue pants showing underneath.

Madame Grès can be very sexy. too, when she designs what looks like a romantic nightgown, made of a single layer of fabric over a nude slip. For women who aren't quite up to such a drop-dead entrance, there are more silk organdies in ethereal colors and with wing draperies or a more tailored, spiral-draped dress in navy blue and white polks dots. No woman with a promising night life can afford to miss Mme. Grès this season.

At Paton

On Wednesday Patou's collection by Michel Goma was sugar 'n' spice and everything nice, except for those shoes with open fronts and toes sticking out like teeth; inch-deep platforms and heels so high that they tilted the girls forward.

Guess what. The show, like most this season, took off with pants suits, cut very full, since Goma is famous for liking to see girls look like girls. Pants suits turned up all through the collection, worn usually with bare backs and big picture hats.

Goma really pounded home the point of that bare back. His biggest applause-getter was the halter-neck evening dress, half hidden by a big white hat brim. It was only at the end of the show that the models came in hatless, showing their curly, coat in natural shantung with matching pants, crepe de chine blouse.

Prazier in her debutante days. In between, the Paton collection is full of nice, little fitted coats that remind you of Fifth Avenue on Easter Sunday and sieeveless

Solti's affinity for this music, his vibrant response to the tense inner life of the drama in the music, made the performance of "Bluebeard's Castle" a memorable one. The opers, written in 1911 but not performed until 1918, is a curious one in that most stage productions seem either too static or too obtrusive, whereas the music—where the real drama takes place—seems to be liberated by a concert performance, as it

Fire Destroys Great Italian Costume House

ROME, Jan. 27 (Renters), Fire has destroyed one of the world's greatest stores of the trical and film costumes, the Umberto Tirelli collection.

Damage is provisionally esti-mated at more than 100 miller lire (about $169,548). But the fire will also cause problems for theatrical and film produces throughout the world.

Italian director Luching Vi conti is now expected to have to delay filming of his new speciac ular "Ludwig"—about King Ind-wig of Bavaria—because metumes he had ordered from Tirelli were lost in the fire.

Alcan Aluminium Net Declines by 16.4%

PRANKFURT, Jan. 27 (AP. DJ) Farbwarke Hoechst domestic group net profit fell 30 percent to 236 million devische marks from 337 million in 1970, Hoechst said today. The company said the figures are

Perent company profit on the year was down 25 percent to 222 million DM from 296 million the previous year.

The chemical company said that a final dividend statement will be made later. It noted that if parent company after-tax profit were fully utilized for a dividend, the payout would be 7.50 DM a share compared with the 1970 dividend of 10 DM. Hoechst's world-wide sales rose 11 percent last year to 129 billion DM from 11,6 billion in 1970. For this year, the company predicted a 5 percent volume increase. The firm said 1971 earnings had been depressed by higher personnel costs of 150 million DM and by price declines of some 163 million DM for some chemical products.

Alcan Profit Drops NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (AP-DJ).—Alcan Aluminium Ltd. profit fell 16.4 percent in 1971, the Montreal-based company announced today. Profit was $60.2 million, or $1.75 a share, down from $72 million, or $211 a share, in Revenue was $1.45 billion, up 5. percent from $1.38 billion the Year-ago figures exclude an extraordinary gain of $9 million due to currency changes.

Siemens Payout Cut MUNICH, Jan. 27 (AP-DJ) .--The supervisory board of Siemens AG approved today the management proposel to cut the 1971 dividend to 14 from 16 percent in 1970, the company reported. This puts the dividend at 7

DM a share. The cut enables Siemens to raise reserves by 72 million DM, compared with a rise of 41 mil-tion in 1992, and will help insure fathe growth, the com-

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Boots Steps Up Bid for Glaxo

Boots, the British pharmaceuticals maker and distributor, has stepped up its takeover offer for Glaxo, another pharmaceuticals firm. The new bid is two Boots shares plus £1 nominal convertible loan stock for each Glavo share. This put the bid at £381 million at the latest prices on the London Stock Exchange. Glace directors have recommended the bid without hesitation." This weekend the Beecham Group, rebuffed in an earlier bid for Glazo, raised its offer to £385 million in ordinary shares and loan stock (now worth £257 million due to a decline in the value of its stock). This compared with an earlier bid by Boots valued at £340 million. A Beecham spokesman says the firm will consider the position "when we have seen the full facts."

Russians Beat U.S. in Steel Output

The Soviet Union last year exceeded the United States in steel production and became the largest steel producing nation in the world, the American Iron and Steel Institute reports. It attributes the U.S. loss of primary to the combined effects of the economic recession and record imports of foreign steel. The institute's estimate of 1971 U.S. steel production is 120 million tons wall below the 1969 record of 141 million tons. Official Soviet data put Russian steel output at about 133 million tons.

Computer Firms in Joint Venture National Cash Register (NCR) and Control Data have announced a close association in the development and manufacture of peripheral equipment for computers and in the development of future central processors. They will establish a jointly-owned company with net assets of about $50 million to engineer and make most of the computer peripherals to be used by both companies. They also will work toward a high degree of compatibility of their mainframes, or central processors. NCR will develop a new computer to bridge the two companies product lines, and will also develop and make the small and medium size parts of the joint computer line. Control Data will bring out the larger models.

Green Giant Rejects BAT Unit Bid Green Giant of the United States says it has aceived and rejected a $100 million bid from the U.S. unit of British-American Tobacco. The proposal called for a combination of the two companies in which Green Giant stockholders would have received $35 in cash for each share of common stock. Directors voted to form down the proposal because it "is not in the best interests of the company and its stockholders," Green

Fund Plans Merger With Dreyfus

Another offshore mutual fund is planning to bite the dust. Fleschner Becker Fund, with assets of about 87 million, is recommending that share-holders approve a plan to merge with Dreyfus Intercontinental, an offshore venture sponsored by Dreyfus Corp. of New York, which has assets of $45 million. If approved, it will be the fifth offshore fund that Intercontinental has absorbed since it went public with a $20 million offering in early 1970. At the end of last year, Fleschner Becker preferred stock had a net asset value of about $9.69. These shares will be exchanged for Dreyfus Intercontinental. However, holders of Fleschner Becker common stock are not entitled to any liquidation payment.

U.S. 'Leading' Indicators Up 2.2% in Month

December Increase Biggest Since January

By Robert J. Samuelson WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (WP).

—The government index of leading economic indicators rose 22 percent in December—the sharp-est rise since January, when the index jumped 23 percent in the wake of the settlement of the strike against General Motors. Aside from that increase, last month's gain was the biggest since October, 1968, when the index rose 2.5 percent. This provides important evidence that the economy will be expanding vigorously in the years ahead." Harold C. Passer, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Affairs, said in a

The index represents a composite of eight economic indica-tors which are generally thought indicate the future direction of the economy. However, all the individual indicators have been announced separately be-

Of the eight, four advanced during December: The average work week of manufacturing employees inched up 0.5 percent (from 40.1 hours to 40.3 hours); initial claims for unemployment insurance declined from 301,000 to 266,000, resulting in an 11.6 percent increase in this part of the index; new housing permits rose 14.3 percent; and stock prices (represented by the Standard & Poor's average of 500 stocks)

Cedel Offers 10-50% Cut in Volume Fees

LUXEMBOURG, Jan. 27 (AF-DJ).-In the latest round of competition between the two Europond clearing systems, Cedel. the Luxembourg-based system, has announced a schedule of volume reductions in its fees effective retroactively to Jan. 1. Euroclear, the Brussels-based system operated by Morgan Guaranty Trust, announced a volume reduction earlier this month, also effective Jan. 1. The methods of computing the discounts were not comparable but Cedel's maximum discount was 50 percent and Euroclear's Cedel based its discounts on the fees paid by its participants in a calendar quarter. For fees of $15.001 to $25,000, it offered a 10 percent discount: $25,001 $35,000-20 percent; $35,001 to $50,000-30 percent; $50,001 to $65.000--40 and over $65,000—50 percent.

Euroclear's discounts were based on the number of transactions s participant made in a month. For 700 to 1500 transactions, the discount was 10 percent; 1,501 to 2.500 transactions—20 percent; 2,501 to 3,500 transactions 30 percent and over 3,500 transactions-40 percent.

It is understood that British banks and dealers pressed particularly hard to get the two clearing systems to institute volume manufacturers' prices to their labor costs dropped 0.3 percent, indicating that prices were not rising as rapidly as labor costs.

Holders Vote Assets Swap At Interphoto

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (AP-DJ). —Shareholders of Interphoto Corp., and Oxford Electric Corp., in separate special meetings yes-terday approved a proposal for Interphoto to acquire the bulk of Oxford's operations. Under terms of the transaction, which is retroactive to Sept. 1, 1971, Interphoto will buy four Oxford subsidiaries and some assets of a fifth for $8.1 million in debentures, plus warrants to buy up to 500,000 shares of Interphoto common stock at $15 a share. and an as yet undetermined

A fifth subsidiary also involved is Uranya, a practically insolvent Italian maker of television and high fidelity equipment and other electrical products. Some of its assets, valued at about $1.2 million, will be bought by Interphoto for cash.

Most of the Oxford meeting was taken up by lengthy defenses of the transaction by Oxford chairman Daniel A. Porco and president John W. Thornton, and by a description of the history and current activities of Uranya. Mr. Porco explained for the first time the circumstances under which Oxford would be liable as guarantor for $7 million in debts of Uranya, which are owed to a Milan bank controlled by Italian financier Michele Sindona, who is also, indirectly, the principal shareholder in both Oxford and Interphoto, The debts are important to the transaction because Oxford has said it plans to use a substantial part of the proceeds of the sale to Interphoto to help finance repayment of the debts. Interphoto is 51.6 percent owned by Argus Inc. Mr. Sindona holds a substantial interest in Argus, and he holds 19.7 percent of the common stock of Oxford. Mr. Porce said Oxford "never gave a guarantee in writing" on the debts and that Oxford "didn't give what we call a guarantee in this country." He said Oxford, under Italian law, would be liable for the debts of Uranya if it went bankrupt, and in this sense would be a guaran-

Prices Rally Strongly On Active N.Y. Market

Prices bounced back in a strong -and exceptionally broad-recovery on the New York Stock Exchange today, fed by faverable economic news, improved earnings reports and increased public par-

Sharing in the advance were glamour, airline, computer, steel and consumer-oriented issues. The Dow Jones industrial average, climbing steadily during the heavy trading session, finished just shy of the 900 mark. Citibank's Profits Seen Aid to Other

National City Bank (Citibank), to help finance expansion of non

Statistics gleaned from Citicorp's preliminary prospectus cov-ering a proposed $100 million note offering showed that Citibank paid $160 million of dividends to its parent in 1971, up from $152.7 million in 1970.

The dividend payments last year amounted to almost 94 percent of the bank's total net income of $170.6 million in the year. A year earlier, the dividends actually exceeded the bank's 1970 net income of $145.5 million.

Citibank's dividend last year dwarfed the $722 million corp paid to its own stockholders and the $8.4 million of interest it paid on notes originally sold by the bank but assumed by the holding company.

Citicorp said the excess of the bank's dividend was "available for corporate purposes including future debt service and dividend declarations." While the prospectus did not ecify, it appeared that some of the "overage" also was used in making leans to Citicorp's non-bank subsidiaries. Such advances amounted to $356.5 million at the end of 1971, up sharply from $112.1 million a year earlier. The prospectus did not disclose what affiliates were the major borrowers. A spokesman, how-ever, confirmed that much of the increase in affiliate borrowings was accounted for by Advance Mortgage Corp, a mortgage-financing unit acquired in mid-

Elsewhere in the prospectus, the figures showed that earnings of non-bank subsidiaries last year almost doubled to about $3.4 million. In 1969, there were losses

The 100 Pipers Legend.

Our legend claims if you sip a perfect Scotch you'll hear 100 pipers play, That's a lot of Pipers. But then 100 Pipers is a lot of Scotch.

100 Pipers Scotch. From Seagram, Scotland.

South opened one no-trump, showing 13-15 points in the Precision systems. North raised aggressively to three no-trump, relying on the power of his five-card diamond suit.

It is obvious that South has eight top tricks, and he has some chances of a ninth—a club lead away from the king, a second heart trick if the defenders attack that suit, or a second spade trick.

An opening club lead would

An opening club lead would have destroyed South's chances, but West led the heart king since the dummy was likely to have minor suit strength. South chose to put up dummy's ace of hearts. This gave up the chance that West would err by continuing hearts after a duck, assuming that his partner held the heart jack, but it prevented an immediate shift to clubs and allowed for the possibility that East, South led a spade from dummy, planning to duck, but East put up the queen. South won with the ace and entered dummy with a diamond lead. Another spade lead was taken by the queen, and East returned the heart three on which South played the nine.

West had to consider whether his partner held the heart jack, in which case it would be necessary to play the queen to permit East to overtake the ten on the third round of hearts.

But that could only gain if South had neglected to cash nine available tricks in the other suits. Since he had not done so it was virtually certain that East held a club honor. So West took his two heart tricks, with the ten first, and led the club jack, insuring a one-trick defeat.

THE CAME OF THE FOXES

The Untold Story of German Espionage in the United States and Britain During World War II

By Ladislas Farago, McKay, 696 pp. $11.95.

Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

Farago—the Hungarian-born journalist and author of some dozen military histories, among them "Patton: Ordeal and Triumph," on which the movie was based—had been trying to gather material for a book about the Abwehr, the German secret service under Adm. Wilhelm Canaris. Espionage histories are never easy to write, and in this case the going had been particularly difficult for the Abwehr's activities remained supersecret and the records presumably had been destroyed. Then in 1987, while exploring a dark loft of the National Archives in Washington, Mr. Farago stumbled over the solution to his problems—a hitherto overlooked met-al footlocker that turned out to contain extensive records of the Abwehr's activities in Britain and the United States. For Mr. Farago the discovery was nextdoor to a miracle; he now had his hands on what he judged to be one of the most complete records of secret-service activities ever to come to light. But for the ordinary reader, I am afraid, the discovery proves a mixed blessing.

It is not that the book that resulted from this windfall doesn't contain its share of sensational revelations. We learn from Mr. Farago, for instance, that the spy who is supposed to have guided the German submarine into the Scottish base at Scapa Flow to sink the Royal Oak in fact never existed, and was merely the figment of an enterprising newspaperman's imagination. We have it on Mr. Farago's word that such prominent Americans as Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, three-term Governor of Wisconsin Philip Fox La Follette, and Secretary of State Cordell Hull unwittingly helped the German

We hear the astonishing story of how Nazi agents tried to manipulate to their ends John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, and how Mr. Lewis's dramatic resignation as CIO president in 1940 was the result of those manipulations. And we observe the unraveling of some of the strands that connected German esplonage efforts with various movements to keep America out of the European war.

Nor is it that Mr. Farago's book isn't crammed with details of resourcefulness and inventiveness, technical insights, exploits to rival those of lictional thrillers, comic relief, and surprising revelations. No, for an example of resourcefulness there is the German agent in America who proposed to make bombs out of Chiclets Chis superiors promised to supply him everything but the Chiclets). For inventiveness there is the English camouflage expert who created the illusion for German recon-

For over 10 years, Ladislas naissance planes that one of their agents had destroyed the journalist and author of some de Havilland plant at Hatfield dozen military histories, among them "Patton: Ordeal and Triumph," on which the movie was based—had been trying to gather material for a book about the Abwehr, the German secret the Abwehr, the German secret the Abwehr, the German secret under Adm. Wilhelm Canaris. Espionage histories are

For an exploit to rival fiction there is the case of the double agent on England's side whose signet ring aroused the Octmans suspicions, led them to drug him with a celebratory nighteap and examine the contents of the ring's secret chamber, only to miss the incriminating message written in invisible ink on the reverse side of an innocent photograph secreted there. And for comic relief there is the story of how Adm, Canaris's rival (and later successor). Walter Schel-lenberg, could not believe the vital information he received from one of his agents that Roosevelt and Churchill were about to meet in Casablanca; # seemed too soon after the Allied landing in French Morocco for such a vital conference to occur there, so he passed on to his superiors the news that Churchill was going to Washington to meet with the President in the White (blanca) House (casa),

The only trouble with Mr. Farago's handling of all this extraordinary material - at least from the average reader's point of view—is that the author has told his story as if it were thrilling in its deepest implications. He has filled it with an aura of great expectation by pumping it full of self-advertisements ("It is revealed here for the first time in full...") and pacing it as if it were rushing pell-mell to some apocalyptic conclusion. But in fact he is telling a story, which, for all its revealing details, is predictable in its outcome—namely, England imally went to war, America followed suit, and Germany lost it.

So unless one has brought to the book such an overwhelming interest in its subject matter that each revelation dynamites one to the next, the effect is eventually tedious-like trying to pass through an obstacle course without a finishing line worth reaching. One tires of the andless introductions of new super-sples; one wearies of the incredible complications of the esnionage business; one grows numb to the drama of revelation; one gets hungrier and hungrier for conclusions worthy of the fantastic detail... and eventually one starves.

Or to put it the other way around, "The Game of the Foxes" is reality dressed up as popular history, but lacking in the narrative drive, the oversimplified casualty, and the neat conclusions that make popular history fun to read.

Mr. Lehmann-Haupt is a New York Times book reviewer.

A week or so ago, rain and mild temperatures stirred alarm that Sapporo might be plagued with the same slushy weather that has hounted the Winter Games in the past. But fears have now shifted to the doka yuki, the ferocious storms from Siberia that can dump 2 feet of snow in a few

Tuesday night, the snowfall was so heavy that charter flights bearing the United States, West German, French and Scandinavian teams were turned back from Sapporo and had to land in Tokyo, 460 miles to the south But brilliant bine skies permitted the planes to fly in yesterday. The temperature was about 15 degrees Fabrenheit, and there were a couple of feet of snow on the courses. However, an experts' whether Rokksido's powdery snow

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (AP) --If it were up to Jacksonville coach Tom Wasdin, both the Dolphins and Florida State would be invited to the NCAA's Mideast Regional basketball tournament at Dayton, Ohio, on March 16. But since there apparently will be room for only one, the NCAA selection committee will have a difficult time choosing between the Southern powerhouses. Wasdin made a plich last night after Jacksonville nipped Florida State, 84-82, on Leon Benbow's two free throws with 8 seconds

"We both ought to go," he said. Hugh Durham, Florida State's coach, said, "I appreciate his invitation and we accept it. think both teams will wind up in post-season tournaments. am not saying that both will go to the NCAA I figure Marquette's got to go and that leaves room for only one more." Independent Teams

Marquette, an independent as are Jacksonville and Florida State, is the nation's second-ranked team, with a 15-0 wonlost record. Florida State, rated 10th, is 15-3, including a 90-83 victory over Jacksonville in the final of the Sunshine Classic at Jacksonville on Dec. 7. The unranked Dolphins, who snapped the Seminoles' 10-game winning streak and extended their victory string to six, are 11-2. Ernie Fisming paced Jacksonville with 29 points and Benbow added 20. Reggie Royals was high for Florida State with 17.

Louisville Trimmph: Meanwhile, fourth-ranked Louisville won its 14th straight game since an opening loss and its fourth in a row in the Missouri Valley Conference, thumping St. Louis, 77-59. Fran Costello's two free throws with1:10 remaining and two more by Marvin Barnes with 33 sec-onds left enabled Providence to upset seventh-rated Southern California, 70-66. Ernie DiGregorio sparked the Friars with 27 points and Barnes scored 21. Providence is 12-2 and the Trojans are

Ninth-rated Penn became the fifth major-college team to win 1,000 games, trouncing LaSalle, 80-66, Penn. 11-2, joined Kentucky, Kansas, Oregon State and St. John's (N.Y.) in the 1,000-victory

However, Evgeny Grishin, the Russian speed skater and Olympic gold medalist, has been comsining that the ice surface at the new Makomanai Outdoor Ice Rink has too many cracks.

Cunter Traub, the West German coach of Italy's speed-skating team, has another complaint. While trying out the rink during Tuesday's heavy snow, he skated into an approaching snowplow. He has gone to hospital for examination.

Generally, however, things have gone well. The Japanese, with the courses. However, an experts' their customary efficiency, had argument is already brewing over all 14 sports sites, constructed at a cost of some $30 million, completed and tested a year shead of time.

Japanese Expertise

"You can't help but be impressed by the calm, expert way the Japanese have gone about it," said Robert Petersen, director of the American Cultural Center here.

Another $30 million has been spent on administrative and press buildings and the Olympic village. This is a complex of two 11-story apartment buildings for women and 17 five-story buildings for men. They were built by the government's housing corporation and the apartments are to be individually sold when the games

Despite Starter Trouble Mel Pender disputed his disqualification at Philadelphia. "The starter made the remark that he was going to get me," he said.

Pender Running Well

By Neil Amdur

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (NYT).-Mel Pender is more concerned about who will be pulling the trigger for the start of the 60yard dash tomorrow night in the Millrose Games than the rivals who will challenge him at the

"The starter is supposed to be for the athlete," the 34-year-old Army captain and two-time Olympian told the weekly luncheon of the Track Writers Association of New York, "He's not supposed to be out to get you." Pender, in his 17th year of military service, considers him-self the fastest man out of the starting blocks. Few who have watched the stocky and muscular Atlanta-born sprinter lead and chase Bob Hayes, Jim Hines, Charlie Greene and other gold-medal greats will contest that Pender has been the subject of increased scrutiny by starters and spectators at indoor meets. Lost Friday night in Philadelphia, he was disqualified for two false Starters frequently can determine the tempo of a race, particularly a sprint, and experienced starters are scarce. The Millrose Games, first event of the Madison Square Garden indoor season, will be minus two area track officials and long-time starters, John Tomasko and Eddie O'Shea, who died recently.

"Twe been working on my starts since September," said Pender, who equaled the indoor record for the 60 at College Park, Md., two weeks ago in another controversial race. "And I'm very serious about maing my last Olympic team. It hurts me real bad for somebody to tell me I had a false start."

Napoles to Defend Title Against Briton

LONDON, Jan. 27 (UPD).— World welterweight champion Jose Napoles, the Cuban exile who fights out of Mexico City, will defend his title against Britan's Raiph Charles at the Empire Pool at Wembley on March 28, promoter Harry Leven announced

The 31-year-old Napoles lost Conestota, N.Y., in December, rookie season as the best passer 1970 and regained it six months later. He has successfully defended twice since then. Charles, 26. has held the British and Commonwealth crowns since 1968, but lost the European crown to Roger Menetrey of France last June.

Pender disputed his disqualifi-cation at Philadelphia. The starter made the remark that he was going to get me," Pender said. "If you have a starter who hol. for 12 or 13 seconds instead of 1.8 c: 19, somebody's going to jump."
Pender said: "I'm going to have a step and a half c every-one. If I don't, I can't win." "I have this thing about starts." he continued in short, staccato tones that characterize his sprint style on the track, "Maybe I'm a warlock. I was born on Hal-lowern. I can feel it. I can feel when that man is going to pull the trigger."

Pender has reached the 100meter finals of the last two Olympics and finished sixth each time. He also was a member of the victorious U.S. 400-meter relay team at Mexico City in 1968. "I'm really surprised at how well I'm doing now," he added.
"I didn't feel I could hold out

Pender also surprised the luncheon turnout with these observations: Valery Borzov of the Soviet Union, rated the world's No. 1 sprinter, "is not going to win nothing at Munich, Bob Hayes is the greatest sprinter ever (he only ran fast enough to win) and Charlie Greene must reckoned with again at Munich."

Quarterback Cook Retires From Bengals

CINCINNATI, Jan. 27 (UPI) .-Cincinnati Bengal quarterback Greg Cook, sidelined the entire 1971 season with a bad arm, said yesterday he was retiring from

Cook said he had no plans to join the Bengals at their National Football League training camp next summe

"I may try to lob a few passes between now and then just to see if there's some kind of medical miracle," said Cook. "But I don't expect one. As far as I'm concerned, this is it. It's all over." Cook has undergone two operations on his right shoulder since he was injured in the third regular-season game of his rookie year in 1969.

A comeback attempt at the Bengal training camp last sumin the now defunct American Pootball League.

"It hurts every time I move it," said Cook, "I haven't slept good in weeks because the pain wakes me up about 4 o'clock every morning."

Chicago, leading by only 1 point at the half, got a 14-point third-quarter performance from Bob Love and went on to defeat Houston, 117-108, at San Antonio, Texas. Love led all scorers with

Darniche's Alpine Has Rally Lead

Andersson Out, Gearbox Is Faulty

MONTE CARLO, Jan. 27 (UPI). -Bernard Darniche in an Alpine Renault, bidding to be the first Frenchman to win the event in 11 years, took a 3 minute 19 second lead after three special sec-tions of the last stage of the Monte Carlo auto rally tonight. Ove Andersson of Sweden in an

Alpine, last year's winner, retired after the third section with gearbox trouble. Andersson, who had led by 3 seconds going into to-night's final run with seven timed tests, had finished the third stage 3:13 behind the leaders, but he and co-driver John Davenport had to abandon the chase. "I only have second and fourth gears, the rest have gone," said

Another Alpine, which had been bolding down fourth place and is driven by Jean-Claude Andruct of France, also ran into trouble, and suddenly the Alpines, which had three cars in the top four going into tonight's stage, had to rely on Darniche to repeat last year's victory. Sandro Munari of Italy moved up to second in his Lancia, 3:19 behind the lender, and Andruet held third, but brake problems seem to make it a matter of time before he retires, too. The Porsche of Frenchman Gérard Larrousse is fourth but remained 16 minutes behind-The Japanese Datsun of Finland's Rauno Asltonen remained fifth, another 3 minutes behind Only 30 of the 34 starters were still running after the third special timed section, run in the Alps behind Monaco. Among the favorites to drop out with me-chanical problems were Finn Timo Makinen in a team Ford Escort and Frenchman Jean-Pierre Nicolas in an Alpino

After 12 hours of driving on treacherous roads, the winners are expected to return at 7:00 a.m. (0600 GMT) temorrow coffee just because we're doing soan opera? It would be much more conservative to drink a little château - bottled Bordeaux and listen to Bach.

Gov. Rocky: No. I think you are being a little New Left there, fellows. Coffee in the operating room is traditional. As you know, I've been suffering from these very acute conservative impulses

National Review Staff: And you were rushed into surgery today when you felt an irresistible impulse of hero worship for President Dick crash full strength against your crumbling liberalism. But are you aware. Gov. Rocky. of the identity of the man who is to operate? Gov. Rocky: Of course. My arch foe, Mayor John. That stupid. good-for-nothing except for whose utter incompetence the City of New York would today be loveller than any pearl from the Antilles. National Review Staff: But can you trust him with a scalpel?

Gov. Rocky: Scalpel? No scalpel will be needed. I only have to see him to go conservative all over. As soon as he walks into this operating room. I'll be fit to drink coffee with Vice-President Spiro. (He grins with infectious conservatism. Organ music. Detergent commercial, Aspirin. Hair dyes. Mouthwash.)

What Became (Sob) Of Tillie the Toiler?

PARIS (IHT).—For most red-blooded Americans born between the wars, Sunday mornings had a special flavor. Lying in bed or on the floor, engulied in color comics—that was really living. (Until the age of 8 or so, when life began to get too complex.) Moon Mullins, Gasoline Alley, Major Hoople, Maggle and Jiggs. Mutt and Jeff—the sight and smell of those gaudy pages came flooding back, unaided by a madeleine dipped in tea, or even by a doughnut dunked in coffee. But, to be absolutely honest about it, aided a little by a 272-page volume called "The Penguin Book of Comics." Produced in 1987 by two Englishmen (Ye gods!, the book has now been revised and expanded in a new edition, with several famous strips, most of them American, reproduced in full color. . George Perry, who wrote the text, and Alan Aldridge, who designed and decorated the book, have gone far back and dug deep in their search for the comic strip's origins. Back, for example, to the Bayeux Tapestry, circa 1076. The tapestry is certainly a strip-230 feet long and 20 inches wide-but is it in any sense comic? What it might be though, is an early ancestor of such historical-adventure strips as

"Prince Valiant." A trifle owlish in their approach (the strip cartoon has gained ground in its recognition as an iconographic influence in art and as visual communication"), for the most part the authors let the strips speak for themselves. They have done their homework diligently: From the Yellow Kid (1896) to the Wizard of Id. via Boob McNutt. Krazy Kat, the Katzenjammer Kids, and Blondie, they are all here or nearly all. One turns joyously to Page 233 for "Out Our Way" and finds instead something called "Nick Fury. Agent of S.H.LE.L.D."; the index is not Tracing the evolution of the comic strip, they have unearthed a Swiss schoolmaster. Rodolphe Töpffer (1799-1846). "The range of Töpffer's imagination was astonishing.

embracing space travel, violent and surrealistic fantasy, and dreams. He was encouraged by Goethe to publish his work and his story of M. Cryptogramme appeared in the Paris magazine L'Illustration in 1845." Among other progenitors of the cartoon they pay tribute to the English illustrators Hogarth, Rowlandson, and Gill-"Dr. Syntax." the creation of Rowlandson (1757-1827), they describe as "the first regular cartoon character." Comic books, such as the weekly "Spring-Heel'd Jack, the Terror of London," appeared in England as early as the 1860s. "The first true American comic," called

Irving Marder

"Little Bears and Tigers," appeared in 1892, "long after European prototypes." Drawn by James Swinnerton, it ran in William Randolph Hearst's San Francisco Examiner. "Hearst's bitter rival, Joseph Pulitzer," who had bought a four-color press for the Sunday supplement of his New York World, fought back with the notorious Yellow Kid, an urchin in a nightshirt.

Hearst, who had a penchant for plun-dering Europe, brought from Germany an idea for a new strip patterned after Wilhelm Busch's Max and Moritz. "The Katzenjammer Kids." starring Hans and Fritz. first appeared in the New York Journal around the turn of the century. It was drawn by Rudolph Dirks. In a 1912 lawsuit Dirks lost his right to the title but not to the characters. Dirks re-named his strip "The Captain and the Kids" but the Kalzenjammers, now drawn by Joe Musial for King Features. are still going strong. (My own recollection, perhaps confused, is that at one period there were three versions of the strip running concurrently.) . "The first daily strip" was the work of Bud Pisher. a Chicago sports cartoonist who moved West. Augustus Mutt, a horseplayer, made his debut in the San Francisco Chronicle in 1907, and a few weeks later was bought by Hearst for the Examiner. In 1908 Mutt met a little man named Jeffries; the rest is history.

The incorrigible Hearst bured from Pulitzer's New York World a cartoonist named George McManus. In 1913 he created the strip "Bringing Up Father," that features Maggie and Jiggs.

The golden age of American comics had begun, perhaps, a bit earlier, in 1910, with the appearance of "Krazy Kat," by George Herriman. Krazy Kat's hangup was an unrequited love for Ignatz Mouse, who had a habit of throwing bricks at him. Krazy Kat was a couple of generations ahead of his time; the strip's admirers formed one of the first comic-world cults. At this distance, Herriman's spiky line and disregard of panel-strip conventions have a distinct resemblance to such modern comics as "The Wizard of Id" and "B.C." Adored by intellectuals, Krazy Kat inspired a ballet in 1923. When Herriman died in 1944. King Features decided to let the strip die with him. But for many an aging comic-strip buff, the memory of Krasy Kat remains green.

The authors date the start of adventure comics, as distinct from the funnies, with the appearance of a Tarzan strip in 1929. Close relatives are such strips as "Terry and the Pirates" and its offspring "Steve Canyon." Due homage is paid to such strips as "Pogo," but for my money not nearly enough to "The Wizard of Id." the most brilliant, and consistently funny, of the postwar strips. "Peanuts," too. gets its laurels, and Snoopy's dogfights with the Red Baron are not skimped. The modern comic books that stem from Superman— "The Mighty Thor," "The Amazing Spider-Man," "Iron Man and Captain America"also have their innings.

But where are the contemporary successors of such strips as "Hairbreadth Harry." "Tsilspin Tommy." "Happy Hooligan," and Tillie the Toller"? They aren't (sob) making them like that anymore.

PEOPLE: The Wonders of Natural Gas

Every time someone mentions the blessings (cheaper) more efficients) of North Sea natural gas, Arthur Simpson, former mayor of Slough, England, does a slow burn.

He was practically the first on his block to buy a gas stove when the Thames Gas Board started converting homes. The stove arrived Damaged. It took countless repairmen, seven new parts and 12 months to get it all straighten-

The first repairman was unable to adjust the stove; the second left after ordering a new top, door handle and front panel. The third came, saw and ordered— another new top, door handle and front panel. "By then." said Mr. Simpson, "I had the original top, two other tops, two door handles, two front panels and the damaged stove." Somewhat irritated, Mr. Simpson complained to the hoard. Instead of sending pnother repairman, it sent along a new stove. But the deliveryman wouldn't take the old one and sundry parts away. "Can't do that," he said. "A different lot take stores away."

Mr. Simpson called the board. "They seemed very concerned. They said they would be right around to collect it." That was last summer.

The stove was picked up this week Mr. Simpson said it was a farce. A spokesman for the gas board said, "There does appear to have been a mistake."

 When low gas pressure kept doising the pilot light in his home's central-heating unit, David Roff, of Norwich, England, asked the Eastern Gas Board for relief until it could be fixed. The board agreed. This week, Rolf submitted an expense account including 30 pence for matches, £2.50 for a half-ton of logs, 30 pence for telephone calls and £4.40 for electricity. The board paid.

. . . . VODKA ON THE ROCKS: Skater B.P. Kanakin, after a few turns around the rink in Gorki Park and a few stiff belts at the bar, decided it was a pity that ice is merely frozen water. He decided to correct the mistake, headed toward the door. "But the door was too atubborn," reported the newspaper Vechernyay Moskva in a report lamenting the rising number of drunken skaters,

"so he went out through the window, taking the window frame with him." Police caught up with him before he could get his vodka on ice.

UNENVIABLE ROLE: Sir Aleo Guinness will play Adolf Bitler in "Ten Days to Go." to be produced by Wollgang Reinhardt. The film is based on the Hugh Trevor-Roper book of the same name, DIVORC-ED: Lana Turner, 51, and nightclub entertainer Ronald Dante, 51, Wednesday in Santa Monica, Calif. Married on May 8, 1969, they separated six months later. Miss Turner's six previous husbands: Artie Shaw, Stephen Crane (she married him twice), Bob Topping, Lex Barker, Fred May, Robert Eaton, BIG DIS-

Brigitte Bardet, 38, took her younger sister Mijanou to court in Paris yesterday to settle a dispute over an apartment, Mijanou and her husband have been living in Brigitte's Left Bank apartment rent-free. When the actress decided to sell it, she offered her sister another apart-ment-also rent-free-in the 16th arrondissement, But Mijanou likes the Left Bank and won't budge.
